Question 3:

How will the results of the study be used?

Answer 3:

The findings will be for public consumption and may be used to make marketing claims on Canadian canola production relative to canola production in other regions (e.g. Europe).

Question 4:

What data is already available, and what needs to be collected as part of the project?

- a. Will the project require collecting any primary data?

Answer 4:

The data requirements of the LCA are as follows:

- Production data for all field inputs (e.g. fertilizer) for both time periods;
- Diesel and electricity production data and emissions data for both time periods;
- Canola production practices for each region for both time periods, including seeding, chemical plant protection, tillage and harvest operations; and
- Storage practices for each region for both time periods.

Primary data such as survey information will need to be collected in addition to published information and other sources (e.g. Canola Council of Canada – Canola production data, survey data, general information). Further discussion of the data requirements and sources is provided in section 4.0 of the Goal & Scope document.

Question 5:

Do you want to understand other changes in conditions from 1990 (such as power and fuel impacts), or only changes in management practices?

Answer 5:

Our interest is on the impact of farm management changes and how they influence power and fuel consumption not on efficiencies in power generation or fuel refineries.
