Question 1:

In the English version it says: 'a linguistic program'. Those terms do not represent the same reality. 'A linguistic program' is a linguistics course (In French: un programme de linguistique) given in a university or a college. 'Un programme de langue seconde' is a second language program. Could you clarify?

Answer 1:

This point refers to any language program or course related to linguistics or language taught at a recognized Canadian post secondary institution as part of a degree or diploma program. The point previous to this one refers to a second language program.
