This amendment is raised to address the following question:

Q11: The specifications indicates "smooth top flanged never turn panel" while Point #6 alludes to quilted panel. Should the panel be quilted top or non-quilted smooth top?

A11: Please see amendment 1, question and answer # 3

Q12: What is "183m/roll?"

A12: Please see amendment 1, question and answer # 3

Q13: We understand from Globe Springs/Leggett and Plat, who is the sole licensee of 684 multi-lastic springs, that they do not manufacture this spring for a 48" x 79" finished size mattress. No other manufacturer makes an equivalent coil.

Suggestions for alternates:

A) Bonnel 336 springs or

B) 8lb high density Fire Retardant foam with 35 ILD. This would be of higher durability and quality compared to foam mentioned under Point #12 (topper foam). Foam mattresses are easier to recycle, resilient, do not rust, do not have metal protrusions and are not noisy.

A13: No, these types of mattresses are not considered alternates to the 684 continuous coil, please see amendment 1, question and answer # 5 .

Q14: Confirm that foam colour does not matter.

A14: Please see amendment 1, question and answer # 2, colour does not matter.

Q15: Please confirm that compressed packing is not allowed.

Q15: Compressed packing is not allowed.

Q16: What is the height of the box spring?

A16: The box spring should be the same height as the mattress.

Q17: Please confirm whether the 7" metal frame with glides is required with no castors.

Q17: Please see amendment 1, question and answer # 6 and amendment 3, question and answer # 10, metal frame with castors is not required.

All other terms and conditions remain the same.
