

Question 22:

If the head office of a national brokerage firm were to submit a proposal to CMHC and they were to leverage an agent to administer the contract would this be considered a joint venture? The head office would remain the only one responsible for the contract, they are just hiring an agent to help them administer the contract.

Response:

This would not be considered as a joint venture.