AMENDMENT 002

This amendment is raised to answer questions from industries.

Question 1:

Is it possible to ask the Department of National Defence (DND) if they have any drawings they can release of the Harris radio, either CAD drawings of a mock up or the real thing?

It is hard to build a good pouch that will fit the radio correctly, allowing for the antenna and microphone leads etc, to have cut outs that would allow users to fasten/close the pouch securely.

Answer 1:

The Department of National Defence (DND) does not have drawings of the Harris Radio as it is a commercial radio used by DND, it does not belong to DND.

Question 2:

Is there any sealed sample or drawing we can have a look at?

Answer 2:

There are no sealed samples for any of the pouches but there are concept drawings in the Request for Proposal (RFP) for the Ammunition Pouch System.

Question 3:

Appendix 3 to Annex B, Tourniquet Pouch Specification, paragraph 2.1.3 states a requirement for two (2) PALS channels.

Is 1 channel acceptable as this is usually the standard for tourniquet pouches?

There isn't a requirement to use up the additional real-estate on the carrier to accommodate the width of the requested tourniquet to be carried.

Answer 3:

1 channel is acceptable, the pouch must not exceed 2 channels in width.

Question 4:

Is it possible to get a sample vest to perform fitment tests of the pouches?

Answer 4:

No, the vest is a commercially available product.

Question 5:

Can the 2 bid samples (only) be in Black instead of Coyote Brown if provided with a deviation document?

Answer 5:

Yes, black is acceptable in the bid sample. However, a pre-production sample must be submitted in Coyote Brown by the winning bidder.
