A. Questions from potential Bidders:

- Q1 In Addendum 3 the special alarm feature is described (5.1.1-26) but is not defined as a hardware or software modification to the "off the shelf portable radios".
- A1 Depending on the type of radio it may require both firmware and software, while certain types of radios and/or microphones also may require a hardware modification.
- Q2 Please elaborate on the specific nature of the modification required as part of 5.1.1-26 and the user action required to initiate and the resulting network "instant alarm".
- A2 Historically the modification has required source code and/or hardware modifications. The current functionality requirement may or may not require similar modifications, this will vary from manufacture to manufacture and thus cannot be specifically answered.

The user initiates the alarm with a two button push of one of two buttons. The radio transmits a 9 code to a specific group along with the transmitting radio's unique ID to a specific alarm receiver and certain management personnel which displays the alarm based on the Border Services Officer physical location. The network knows the location of the Border Services Officer simply by determining which Node they are logged into.
