This amendment is raised to respond to questions as follows:

Question:

With reference to Annex A, Section 4.3 Contractor Mandatory Requirements, para 4.3.9., can you please identify which R&O item in the scope of this contract, mandates the contractor hold an AMO certification?

Could this mandatory requirement be removed and still allow the scope of this SOW be fulfilled by an entity that does not hold an AMO?

Response

The requirement for the contractor to hold and maintain Transport Canada certification as an approved maintenance organization (AMO) for Safety Equipment must remain mandatory. This contract will include lifesaving escape evacuation and rescue (EER) equipment such as inflatable personal flotation devices and emergency breathing systems which will be used on board fixed and rotary wing aircraft, and inside armoured vehicles and the contractor who carries out any type of maintenance, repair and overhaul, modification, repacking and recertification of this equipment must be approved by the Canadian regulatory body which is Transport Canada.

All other terms and conditions remain the same.
