Amendment 001 is raised for Questions and Answers:

Question 1:

Will a Swept-Source Fourier Domain OCT be considered acceptable with respect to the requirement on page 10 section MS4?

Explanation:

Swept-source Fourier Domain OCT is the next generation OCT and uses a 1050 nanometer scanning wavelength which differs from Spectral Fourier Domain's OCT 840 to 870 nanometer wavelength. Clinically the indications are the same but the advantage is the ability to scan much faster at 100,000 a-scans/sec which reduces motion artifacts with poor fixation patients without the use of an eye tracker and to penetrate through opacities such as dense cataracts, haemorrhages, surgical oil and gaz bubbles. Retinal layers will be visible with Swept-Source Fourier Domain OCT when Spectral Domain OCT will fail to image completely. Swept-Source Fourier Domain OCT 1050 nanometers can also image through sclera which gives far superior results for imaging angles in glaucoma.

Answer 1:

The Swept-Source Fourier Domain Optical Coherence Tomography unit is acceptable.
