Solicitation Amendment No. 002 is being issued to respond to a question posed by a potential bidder.

Q1. Regarding solicitation No.W3474-173141/A with the title of Foam Sheets, hereby I would like to inform you that after communicating the manufacturer, the required foams with the size 80" X 50" cannot be provided.

The recommended specification is as below:

DUAL LAMINATION ½" PLASTAZOTE WHITE TO ½" PLASTAZOTE BLACK
OVERALL SIZE: 80" NOM X 40" NOM X 1" THICK SKINS REMOVED UNTRIMMED
USABLE MATERIAL 76" X 38"

Would you please inform us if the recommended specification is confirmed?

A1. Yes, the recommended specification has been confirmed. The Department of National Defence will not accept a different size, 40" foam is too small and does not meet the requirement. The absolute minimum size DND can accept is 48". The foam is used on tool boards, essentially it is a tool box that is on an aircraft. These tools boards are more than 40 inches wide and using that size of foam would mean piecing together foam to fit the bigger size. This results in more waste and more time used in fitting the tool boards. All of these tool boards must be exactly the same to fit in a specific location on aircraft. This also means geometrically re-charting the machine that cuts the foam every time there is a size change and where the tools would fit on the sheet.
