Questions Received

Q1. I know it's early in the planning stage, but are you currently looking for one major carrier to support and service the entire PSBN or will it be segmented into regions?

The Government of Canada is currently engaging diverse stakeholders on potential implementation models for a national PSBN in Canada.

In support of this activity, Innovation, Science and Economic Development Canada released this RFI, soliciting ICT/telecom industry perspectives on potential business and governance models. To this end, the RFI involves a question on what business model (s) you recommend for Canada, including stating your assumptions on the number of Canadian operators involved, and if more than one, the nature of partnerships between them.

We invite you to answer in writing the RFI questions and provide your comments, suggestions, and concerns and, where applicable, alternative recommendations regarding how the objectives or the outcomes described in this RFI could be satisfied.

We strongly encourage you to participate.
