Amendment 003 has been raised to make the following changes and answer the following questions:

Question 1: Could you clarify if the 32 bays of drive-in rack will be in one continuous row? If not, how are the sections divided (for example, 2 rows with 16 bays)?

Answer 1: The 32 bays of drive-in rack will be in one continuous row.

Question 2: For the colour of the system. Please elaborate on the link to the existing grid system and foot print and can signage be used instead of colour?

Answer 2: DND will only accept the colour orange for the required drive-in racking system and the colour schematics is very strict. The colour of the system allows for a quick determination for the pallet size and type of items DND puts on this system and is required for their operational usages. Signage cannot be used instead of colour.
