

To respond to questions asked by bidders

Question 13

I understand that questions and answers must be public. However, referring to the pages indicated (3, 4, 5 and 22 of the request for proposal), as well as the public answers, I have it difficult to obtain complete information.

On page 22, it is said that "Interested parties are invited to submit short proposals (no more than five pages)" and that these five pages should include the budget. On page 4, it says that the technical bid and the financial bid must be submitted separately.

My question is this: Is it the same five-page document but broken down in two parts for the budget?

Answer 13

The five-page maximum applies to the part of the proposal submitted under the technical bid, which will be assessed based on its technical merit.

All other terms and conditions remain unchanged.