This solicitation amendment 003 is raised to answer bidder question.

Question:

1. In the document "GAC: Armored Vehicle Manufacturing Specification" in point 4.18, you mention blast bolts that must be installed on the doors (4) and the tailgate (2). The English term you use is "blast bolt". To ensure that we understand this requirement, could you define the function of these blast bolts?
2. We also have a question about the opening capability of the driver window. In the document "AMC: Specifications for the Manufacture of Armored Vehicles", in point 2.1.6, it is specified that this opening must be at most 100mm, but in Annex B, it refers to an opening of at least 100mm. In the English version of your specifications, we only find the concept of 100mm maximum. Can you confirm that the English version is correct and that the driver window should open up to 100 mm?
3. Finally, concerning the optional order, in the French version, Item n ° 7 is treated as a Land Cruiser 200 North American version, Driving on the right, gasoline, while the notion "North America Version" disappears in the English version. Could you confirm the model and type of LC200 requested for item # 7?
4. Can you confirm that the PAS300 / VSAG test will not be accepted?

Answer:

1. Blast Bolt or Deadlock - A mechanical lock that can only be locked and unlocked from inside the vehicle by the occupants
2. The English version is correct. The driver window must open up to a maximum of 100 mm
3. Delete the reference to North American Version in the French solicitation.
4. The PAS300 / VSAG test will be accepted.

All other terms and conditions remain the same.
