This Amendment no. 008 has been raised to:

1- Answer the following questions:

	Questions	Answers
33	In Attachment 4.7 – Project Reference Response template, you ask for the customer name & Validator’s contact, etc. we have a list of project references but most of our references are confidential. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - can we disclose the customer name after the contract award? - Can you please define the “validator”? 	The Bidder may choose to make this field generic and does not necessary have divulged a person’s name. For example: Project Customer Name: Government of Canada The Bids are treated as commercial sensitive, information provided to support the bids are only used for evaluation purposes. The purpose of a validator is to have someone attest to the work that is being described other than the Bidder. This is an optional field.
34	Bidders are asked to provide a Team firm per diem rate for the two option periods that will be based on the Team used for the initial study work. The initial detailed engineering and costing analysis work is well defined which means a bidder can identify an appropriate team to do the work and accurately forecast the labour cost. However, the work that will be undertaken as Optional Professional Services is not well defined and cannot be accurately predicted months in advance. The RFP’s brief description of the possible option work is copied below to illustrate this situation. After DND issues a task request during the options period, a bidder may find its Team has a gap in its technical expertise which makes it difficult to complete the task. The only option for closing the capability gap may be to add a new member to the Team which may also affect the total per diem rate. Question: If, during the options period, DND issues a task that can only be addressed by adding someone to the Team will a bidder be allowed to do so and adjust the per diem rate accordingly to reflect the change in personnel needed to address DND’s options period requirements?	The firm all-inclusive per diem provided in a Bidder’s proposal will be the per diem used for both option periods of the contract and will not be adjusted once the contract is awarded.

ALL OTHER TERMS AND CONDITIONS REMAIN THE SAME AND IN FULL EFFECT.
