Will the only risk accredited certification, RIMS-Certified Risk Management Professional (RIMS-CRMP) which is the only competency-based risk management credential that demonstrates performance ability and technical knowledge that can navigate the risk environment from an enterprise-wide perspective be accepted as a professional designation? <https://www.rims.org/certification/rims-crmp/about>

RIMS-CRMP holds official accreditation from the American National Standards Institute (ANSI) under ISO/IEC 17024:2012, which makes it the only risk management certification in the world to hold accredited status.

Please note: the examples of professional designations that were provided in this solicitation is not an exhaustive list.

All other terms and conditions remain the same.
