This Solicitation Amendment 001 is raised to answer bidders' questions #1 to 8 and make changes to the RFP:

*****

Q.1.

Reference the above mentioned solicitation, page 32 of 73, Annex B- Statement of requirement M10- Would 110-125 grain be acceptable for general purpose?

A.1

No, only a bullet weight of 110 grains would be acceptable.

Q2:

Under section 1.2 Requirement it states "The RCMP will only accept bid submissions for ammunition that is manufactured in Canada and/or United States of America". Will the authority consider revising this statement to allow ammunition manufactured in Europe as long it still meets all the criteria, ANSI/SAAMI regulations and all other testing requirements?

A2:

No, only ammunition that is manufactured in Canada and/or United States of America will be considered.

Q3:

Is a 125 grain projectile acceptable as a substitute for 110 grain for the 300 AAC Blackout Frangible round?

A.3

No, a 125 grain projectile will not be acceptable.

Q4:

Would the RCMP accept a 108 grain projectile for the frangible ammunition? The manufacturer states they have experienced higher accuracy and better performance with a 108 grain projectiles.

A4:

Yes, the RCMP would accept a projectile of 108 grain.

For this Solicitation, including all the Annexes and Appendices, for the Frangible round only, Canada will accept 108 to 110 grain therefore anywhere in the RFP where 110 grain Frangible is identified:

Delete:

110 grain and;

Insert:

108 to 110 grain

Q5:

Would the RCMP accept a semi jacketed projectile for the frangible ammunition? The manufacturer states their testing shows better performance with a semi jacketed projectile especially when used in conjunction with a suppressor as prolonged use of an unjacketed projectile can lead to build up and bullet shaving.

A5:

Yes, the RCMP would accept a semi jacketed projectile.

Q6:

Would the RCMP consider accepting product manufactured in Europe as long as it is a reputable manufacturer and meets CIP specs?

A6:

Please see Q & A #2

Q7:

For the options years, there is an "up to" quantity and a mention that it can be done in multiple orders or not. Would it be possible to add a minimum buy so the cost will be calculated on a bigger quantity and be more realistic?

A7:

No, a minimum buy will not be added. It is the RCMP's intention to order their ammunition once each year.

Q8:

Knowing that the RCMP has multiple locations, do we have to assume that it can be theoretically a requirement of one box per site or is there a minimum quantity per site and a minimum number of sites per order?

A8:

No, there is no minimum quantity per site or minimum number of sites per order. It is the RCMP's intention to order their ammunition once each year.
