10.1 Prepare specifications for construction projects applying accepted industry best practices, including the use of CCDC Documents, National Master Specification (NMS) Templates or other accepted industry sources as appropriate. Ensure that specifications are free of conflict and ambiguity. 10.2 Prepare specifications for construction projects applying accepted industry best practices, including the use of CCDC Documents, National Master Specification (NMS) Templates or other accepted industry sources as appropriate. Ensure that specifications are free of conflict and ambiguity. 10.3 Organize scope sections so that they are limited to describing single units of work for complex work. Broad scope sections may be used for less complex work. Use the NMS 1/3 page format, the NMS 2/3-page format or the Construction Specifications Canada (CSC) full-page format consistently for the entire specification. Start each section on a new right hand page indicating the DND project number, section title, section number, page number, and specification date on each page. The project title, and Contractor's name are not to be indicated. 10.4 Ensure that code and standard references are up to date and use the current applicable edition of all references quoted. 10.5 In specifying materials, use generic names for referencing construction materials.
