QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Q11. 5.4.2.1.2 point d.

Flying practice for each of the participants, including specific scenarios related to inspection, search and rescue, environmental response, etc.;

In order to apply specific practice we would need to clarify the following.

Specific levels of instruction that needs to be taught to the pilots

What level of instructor and to what level of training qualifications should instructors possess in Order to achieve what you are needing.

Do you have particular scenarios needed. E.g. environmental what specific environmental situation should training be prepared for

The issue is the point d. can encompass a very broad cases of scenarios. We would need specifics in order to achieve or Train to any specific scenarios....

A11. The intent of the language is to ensure the staff being trained are able to use the full system capabilities in specific situations. For example in a Search and Rescue situation trainees should be able to use the IR camera and set up a grid search pattern in the autopilot, or in an inspection trainees should be able to fly around a distinct point (a tower or buoy are examples) and keep the camera pointed at the item of interest. If the vendor ensures the trainees are capable of using the systems capabilities as related to flight control and mission planning, and payload control, that will meet the requirements of the SOW.
