Page	Section	Statement	Question	DND answer
N/A	N/A	N/A	Can you confirm if you can accept e-signatures on submissions for W6399-21-LG84/A - Handheld X-Ray Fluorescence Systems (XRF)?	E-signatures are acceptable on submitted documents.
	Annex A, 1.2		In Annex A Statement of Work, section 1.2, Background, RFP states “DND has a requirement for analysis and identification of inorganic materials. The XRFS will allow capability to analyze samples at the atomic level for the identification and quantification of compounds”. Can you provide additional information regarding these inorganic compounds and whether or not you expect suppliers to provide application packages, in addition to alloy mode, to quantify these inorganic compounds?	Elemental analysis of the following: - common commercial/industrial metals and alloys - common radiological compounds and ores - inorganic energetic compounds - miscellaneous: cyanide salts, various inorganic sulphides and phosphides DND expects the bidder to provide the package that best meets our needs, whether it is an alloy package or a grouping of different packages.
			We believe we have two different models of hand-held XRFS that may meet the technical requirements. Will you be willing to accept proposals for two different hand-held XRFS for consideration from a supplier?	The company can provide two separate bids, and we will evaluate them independently of each other.
	Annex B, Table 2		In Annex B Pricing Schedule, Table 2: Optional Requirement, there is an item called “Overall Sub-total”. Please clarify how this is supposed to be calculated.	In Annex B Pricing Schedule, Table 2, bidders are expected to calculate each columns subtotal, and then add those subtotals together to determine the overall subtotal for Table 2. Applicable taxes are not included in this total.
